comments responsive to this Notice as "Comments—NBP Public Notice #20."
"Digital Democracy"

Dear FCC:

I would like to submit my comments on your notice for "Digital Democracy." This notice greatly concerns me. We are experiencing high amounts of voter fraud, and many Americans do not trust the election process any longer. It's sad to say, but we no longer trust our own government.

Even though our government refuses to investigate any charges, most people believe ACORN is a corrupt form of organized crime fully involved in voter fraud. I am submitting a partial list of alleged offenses committed by ACORN that the government refuses to investigate.

Here are my viewpoints regarding your notice.

1. Registering to vote: If you put voter registration online, the ability for fraudulent voter registration will be easier than it already is. ACORN will have a heyday. We'll have more dead people voting than we do now.
2. Processes Leading up to Election Day. I have no issue with this section except for (b) casting absentee ballots. Once again, ACORN comes to mind.
3. Voting. No, no, no. We need to go back to physical ballots where they can be examined if there is a discrepancy. If people are too lazy to mail in an absentee ballot or drive to a polling place, then they are too lazy to educate themselves on the issues. We are already in a situation with widespread corruption in the government. Online voting would lead to greater corruption, especially by ACORN. PLEASE do not make it any worse.

What about showing identification? Whenever I vote, I must hand my driver's license to my neighbor who I have known for 13 years. How can you verify it is the registered voter without identification?

4. Online government hearings and townhalls. It's great to broadcast government hearings online. However, I have a huge problem with townhalls being online. This summer we all experienced our cowardly representatives hiding online and on television with their "townhalls," afraid of speaking directly to the very people that employ them. A townhall should be in a town hall, not online where they can distance themselves even more from the people they represent. Our public servants will be able to completely control the situation and make government more powerful than it already is.

Finally, I would like to close that sometimes government makes things more confusing than they should be and actually causes people not to get involved. For example, I tried to respond to this online, but the two websites provided were too difficult to navigate. I called the number at the end of the pdf and was transferred to the voicemail of a man on vacation. (I had specifically told the receptionist my question. She knew I wouldn't leave a message.) I am highly computer literate. Your website is beyond confusing.

Also, I am not sure if you will even accept my comments because I have no idea what this means:

This matter shall be treated as a "permit-but-disclose" proceeding in accordance with the Commission's ex parte rules. See 47 C.F.R. §§ 1.1200, 1.1206. Persons making oral ex parte presentations are reminded that memoranda summarizing the presentations must contain summaries of the substance of the presentations and not merely a listing of the subjects discussed. More than a one- or two-sentence description of the views and arguments presented generally is required. See 47 C.F.R. § 1.1206(b). Other rules pertaining to oral and written ex parte presentations in permit-but-disclose proceedings are set forth in section 1.1206(b) of the Commission's rules, 47 C.F.R. § 1.1206(b).

Thank you for your time,
